

Here's how important our clients are to us:

Bob the Chefs, now known as Bob's Southern Bistro, is a well-established and wildly popular restaurant and catering business in Boston's trendy South End neighborhood that specializes in mouth-watering Southern cuisine and features great live jazz. Owner Darryl Settles wanted to renovate the interior to increase seating capacity and appeal more to Boston's ever-increasing young urban professionals crowd. What began as a bar renovation quickly turned into a discussion and planning for a major renovation, which was eventually scaled back due to financial limitations. But, one thing never changed: the restaurant could only be closed for two weeks. As the project evolved, Vision Builders wound up logging in four months of planning for a two-week job. "Not a problem...our clients are that important to us." commented Anthony Gagliardi of Vision Builders.

"Besides, all that planning ensured that the job ran flawlessly, was on time, and actually came in under budget." You can see the quality of the work at www.bobssouthernbistro.com. And this is what Darryl Settles had to say about the experience:

"Vision Builders was great to work with; and their lead person, Anthony Gagliardi, is very resourceful and understands the importance of time and money. He provided great feedback and made sure that we were at all times on the same page. I highly recommend Vision Builders, and plan to use them again with other projects."
